Keynote Speaker

A wounded veteran himself, Morrissey has worked tirelessly for wounded warriors with the Wounded Warrior Care Project in Augusta, GA, whose mission is to organize and promote a community-based Wounded Warrior Center of Excellence.

Morrissey had three tours of duty in Afghanistan with the Illinois National Guard and was first deployed there in the fall of 2002. He returned from that first assignment in early 2004 and was back at work at Hunter Douglas for six months before he was called for his second deployment. His third deployment immediately followed the second. In 2006, while involved in combat operations in southern Afghanistan, he was ambushed and shot eight times with an AK-47 rifle. Hit in both legs, both arms and twice in the chest and on his way to possibly losing a limb, Morrissey spent three years in recovery, first at Fort Gordon’s Eisenhower Army Medical Center and later at the nearby Charlie Norwood VA Medical Center’s Active Duty Rehab Unit in Augusta, Ga. This unit is an intensive, one-of-a-kind facility that helps wounded soldiers get back on their feet.

Morrissey survived without losing a limb and is now back working full time at Hunter Douglas, where he heads the Key Accounts Sales Group for the company. During and after his recovery Morrissey has given back, helping younger soldiers and Marines, many with missing limbs, as they face every day the physical and emotional pain of long-term therapy. In April, Morrissey organized an appearance by CSI: NY actor Gary Sinise, who supports troops overseas and stateside through the USO program as well as personal initiatives, at an Augusta fundraiser for the Wounded Warrior Care Project.
